- Mitrofetion had been succeeded by Kurrenkov, who was reviously assigned to the unit at the former Wulokow Fstere (2500). A total of appreximately 75 T-54 tanks were seen in the tanks a eds of Wnit Fulkovski.
- 2. Fehind the turret of the T-54 tanks was a wire lattice, which was from the outside by a seldier. After the lattice had been revoved, he cylinder block rose from below without any support from outside. I her three soldiers had worked on the rotor for a short time, a crane truck removed the rotorblock and replaced it by another rotor which, after a few manipulations, disapreare in the hole which was Qubsequently covered with the wire lattice. The lattice was about 1 x 1.5 reters large. The exchange of the rotor took between 15 and 60 minutes. The tracks of the tanks were exactly 60 cm wide (measured with a folding rule).
- The sheds of Unit Fuikovski quartered 2 track laying vehicles which were described as follows: The vehicles were less wider and longer and 50 to 80 cm lower than T-54 Canks: They had 6 logic wheels, I drive wheel, I guide theel and a track, about 35 cm wide, without track - supporting rollers. The hull resembled that of an arphibious vehicle. The hull rear plate and the lower front plate slanted in an engle of about 500. In about the riddle of the hull roof plate, which arreared to be even, was a turnet similar to that of a T-54 tank. A gun of 50 to 60 rm projected from the turnet. The barrel of the gun was fitted with a rather strong jacket about half of its length. 3
